Philippe Briand, from the London-based design firm Vitruvius, has designed a brand new 45-metre superyacht project named Nautilus 45 in collaboration with the French shipyard, Ocea. Designed to cruise through all landscapes, the Nautilus 45 superyacht seeks to combine the elegance of a luxury yacht with the adventurous potential of an explorer vessel.

comments: “Our design features simple, sleek lines with no superfluous details. The Nautilus 45 combines all the essential elements: it is the best yacht for 2020, the ultimate evolution in yacht design.”

Five large guest cabins and a full-width master suite can accommodate up to 12 guests. “The specifications of the Nautilus 45 are similar to those of the OCEA Classic of twenty years ago: a comfortable, spacious boat,” Briand explains. “Our goal was to achieve maximum comfort and overall efficiency with a contemporary design.” Up to eight crew members can take care of her guests.

Two eight-metre tenders can be housed on the main deck of the Nautilus 45 and will allow her owner and guests to explore even the most remote bays and coastlines. An easy boarding system seeks to facilitate safe access to and from the ocean on the tender, which was developed exclusively for the Nautilus 45.
